

Land full of Wild Animals - 22.01.2019

We will look at different wild animals in different countries. The children will choose and draw pictures of the wild animals in their country and write about them. The drawings will be sent to each of the participating countries, one animal from every country. All the schools will then create some sort of landscape on the wall and place animals there when they have arrived.

The children from, if possible, all of the eTwinning countries, will spend time learning about wild animals of their own country. They will then use different ways of art to create pictures of the animals. Those creations will be sent to other participating countries.

A bit later pictures from the other countries will arrive. That gives the pupils a great chance to learn what kind of animals live in different parts of Europe.
